How should I introduce Glisser to my audience?

It's a good idea to mention Glisser in any pre-event communication you have with your delegates to give people a heads-up. On the day, make sure your chair or moderator for the day includes a few words introducing Glisser to the room during the Welcome speech at the start of the day.

Below is our recommended template text, but again we'd recommend tailoring this to your own event.

We'll be using Glisser today – they're an event technology company helping to make presentations more interactive and useful for us all.

So they work by sharing slides direct to your phones or devices so you can download today's presentations, and we'll also be using Glisser to let you text in questions, and vote in polls throughout the event.

There's no need to download anything.

Just put this url: glsr.it/TBC Into your internet browser on your device or phone (chrome or safari are fine). No need for www. in front, and it's not case sensitive. All you need is to be on our wifi system [read out login details], or just use your 4G data.

To vote in polls, select your answer and press send.

To ask a question, just type your question into the text box at the bottom of your screen and press send.

Glisser will also let you send the slides to your email address after the presentation if you've logged in at the start, so there's no need to take any photos of slides you like the look of. We hope you enjoy using it!
